New Learning Center Will Be Constructed, Thanks to HUD Grant

In a virtually unprecedented move, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has awarded a $2.5 million comprehensive development grant to the Princeton Housing Authority. In contrast, HUD awarded the authority only $60,000 in emergency funds last year, and $246,000 the year before.

While much of the money will go toward improving the infrastructure in Princeton's low-income HUD housing, some will be used to construct a community learning center for the children of the John-Witherspoon neighborhood.

The center would cost between $80,000 and $90,000 to build, and would function as a homework center in the afternoons and evenings. It would also be used as a community meeting and learning center for adults,.

To be constructed on a portion of the resident parking lot on Clay Street, near Witherspoon Street, the one-story building would contain 1,800 square feet of space. This would include a kitchen and bathroom in addition to a large meeting room.

The building would fill the need for a community room that has long been felt by residents of the Clay Street public housing. Since the mid-seventies, a community center has been part of every public housing plan. Since Clay Street was built decades earlier — in 1953 — no thought was given to providing such a facility.

The majority of the $2.5 million HUD grant will be used to improve the 200 units of HUD housing at Redding Circle, Spruce Circle, and Clay Street.

The two previous grants provided for lead testing, termite extermination, and the removal of asbestos at the Clay Street housing.

UNDER THE ARCH: Standing in front of Princeton High School as they prepare for the start of the new school year are Interim Superintendent of Schools Richard Willever, right, and Interim Princeton High School Principal Owen Snyder. Both administrators are serving one-year appointments while the District searches for a permanent school superintendent and high school principal.

Selection of New Superintendent Seen As Most Critical Decision of School Year

Tho most critical decision in the upcoming school yoar is the selection of a new superintendent of schools, said Interim School Superintendent Richard Willever. "There isn't any other decision that will have as much long-term effect as this."

As the Princoton District bogins its 1993-94 school yoar — with Mr. Willover at its holm — the biggest news is the opening of Johnson Park School, Princoton's fourth elementary school. The addition of Johnson Park has allowed the fifth grade to roturn to the elementary schools — something parents in tho community have looked torward to for many years.

Robert Ginsberg and William Cirullo remain as principals of Littlebrook and Riverside Schools, rospectively. But Community Park Principal John Kazmark has movod to Johnson Park, and has been replaced at Community Park by Lois Zabriskie. The middle school continues under the long-time direction of Principal William Johnson, with Leslie Turbeville the assistant principal.

Continuity, however, is not the operative word at Princeton High School, where all three administrators are working on a one-year interim basis. Tho rosignation of Principal Marylu Coviello led to the elevation of Assistant Principal Owon Snydor to the top administrative spot at the school. Elaino Davis, too, resignod as an assistant principal. The two assistant principal oponings are boing fillod on an intorim basis by Ralph Heyman and Marvin Trotman.

John Curtis bogins his first yoar as the high school's athletic director, replacing Carol Parsons. And thon thore's the Guidanco Dopartment, where only one of the tour guidanco counselors on board last yoar — Janet Byard — remains.

Last week, the District hirod two additional counsollors. Barbara Silverman, who had been a guidance counsellor at Loonia High School, bogan work immodiatoly, Shirloy Sat-

State Releases Funds For Desegregation Grant

Princeton's $440,000 desegregation grant, which was put on hold by the State more than a week ago, has been released. The State's docision gives the go-ahead for the District to move forward with its 1993-94 desegregation grant program, which has as its goal the Improvemont of acadomic performance among minority students.

On Friday, State Commissioner of Education Mary Lee Fitzgerald informed Interim School Superintendent Richard Willever that the Department will proceed to administor the grant as it has in the past two years, and will no longer hold the funds.

"I'm very glad we didn't have to in some way disappoint the community that supported us in preparing

Two Organizations Compete for Contract to Complete Griggs Farm

Township Committee will hold a special public meeting this Wednesday evening to hear presentations by the two firms seeking the Township contract to complete 68 units remaining to be built in Courtyard IV of Griggs Farm. The meeting begins at 6:30 and Committee may or may not take formal action to select the winner that evening — or it may do so in closed session.

The two organizations seeking the contract are very different and yet both seem eager to do the job (they are the only bidders), and the competition between them is fairly intense. One is Isles Inc. of Trenton, a nonprofit corporation established in 1981 to foster community development in urban areas. Known primarily for its urban gardens and rehabilitating single-family homes on scattered sites in Trenton, Isles has completed the rehabilitation of 80 units since initiating its affordable housing program in 1989.

More recently, Isles has been looking to do new construction as well, and with its community development orientation, being selected to complete Griggs Farm would fit this aim nicely. It is currently packaging a 46-unit project that involves the conversion of a factory plus new construction of duplex townhomes.

The other bidder is A.P. Orleans of Huntingdon, Pa., a family-owned company founded in 1918 and said to be one of the oldest and largest builders of residential real estate in the East. Orleans has completed nearly 70,000 homes in the Delaware Valley area. They range from condominiums, townhomes

HUD Grant

This year, the money will be used for the renovation of heating pipes and the reconstruction of sidewalks at Clay Street, a new sewer line at Spruce Circle, and porch and siding renovation at Spruce Circle. Also, all windows at the Clay Street houses will be replaced because of the lead content in the present paint.

"HUD came here and did extensive walk-throughs with me and with Henry Pannell, chief of maintenance," said Marcy Crimmins, director of the Princeton Housing Authority. "They said very plainly that they gave the money because they know that when Mr. Pannell is in charge of modernization, we get a $2 value for every dollar HUD gives us."

Ms. Crimmins said she was making arrangements to go before the Borough Zoning Board of Adjustment to ask for a variance to build the learning center. She is also attempting to find some alternative parking places to replace the ten that will be taken up by the new center.

If all goes well, she hopes that the building's footing can be poured before frost. If this happens, the center should be able to open in the spring.

Looking toward the future of the learning center, and concerned with how it will be financed, Ms. Crimmins said she hoped the School Board might cover the continuing cost of a project coordinator. She is also aware that money will have to be raised from the community to keep the center going.

But these concerns are still in the future. For now, she knows that her dream of a place in which neighborhood children can do their homework in a supportive atmosphere has taken that first critical step toward reality.

Desegregation

this grant," said Mr. Willever.

The State had placed a sudden hold on the distribution of the $14 million desegregation fund, which was to be divided among 28 districts. Cited was the possibility that the money had been used in past years to help Democratic political candidates.

The loss of the grant would have effectively ended Princeton's desegregation plans, which had as their cornerstone the establishment of three satellite homework centers at Princeton Community Village, Redding Circle, and Community Park School.

After hearing about the hold on the desegregation funds, Princeton Regional Consultant Edmund Krause immediately sent a letter to Dr. Fitzgerald explaining the importance of the grant, and attaching a copy of the proposal. Telephone calls were also made to area legislators in an effort to unblock the funds.

Four days later, in a fax from Dr. Fitzgerald to Mr. Willever, the crisis ended, permitting the District to begin implementing its extensive desegregation program.

Jazz Festival Planned On October Weekend

For the third consecutive year, JazzFeast, a two-day festival featuring back-to-back jazz concerts and a regional restaurant fair, will be held on Palmer Square. The event will take place Saturday, October 2, and Sunday, October 3, from noon to 5, rain or shine.

"JazzFeast has become a popular event within the Princeton community, as well as surrounding areas," said Palmer Sauare Vice President Jerry Berner. "Last year the event drew between seven and eight thousand people, some of whom were true jazz enthusiasts and others who simply came into town to enjoy some good food and the fall foliage."

This year's music program will feature four groups on Saturday and four on Sunday. They are, on Saturday, The Joe Midiri Orchestra, noon to 1:15; Gene Bertoncini and Michael Moore, 1:15 to 2:30; Eddie Monteiro and Nancy Marano, 2:30 to 3:45; Marty Grosz and Dick Meldonian, 3:45 to 5;

On Sunday, The Steve Kramer Quintet, noon to 1:15; The Eddie Condon All-Stars, 1:15 to 2:30; The Marlene VerPlanck Trio, 2:30 to 3:45; The Morris Nanton Trio, 3:45 to 5.

While Saturday will include some food vendors, the main food festival will take place on Sunday.

terfield, a Princeton resident, is under contract in East Windsor, where she has worked for 14 years.

Mr. Willever said she would not be able to join the high school Guidance Department until she is released from her East Windsor contract, "hopefully within a matter of a few weeks."

Several candidates for the position of guidance director have been interviewed, but no one has yet been hired. Richard Shillito was appointed to the position in July, but he resigned a month later.

Mr. Willever said that if a suitable guidance director couldn't be found, the high school would appoint a fourth counsellor instead.

At the middle school, former fifth grade teacher John Cronin has been appointed a guidance counsellor, replacing retired counsellor Joseph Hovanec. This maintains the number of guidance counsellors at the school at two. Also, Janis Sawicke was hired to replace school psychologist Donald Corr, who resigned in late spring.

Two openings which have not yet been filled are choir directors at the high school and middle school. "We are down to a couple of candidates, who are being presented to the principals," said Mr. Willever. "Tony Biancosino [the instrumental music teacher and fine arts coordinator at the high school] and a committee of parents are screening. They will make recommendations to the principals in the near future," Mr. Willever said.

Replacements have been hired for two long-time, popular teachers at the high school — husband and wife — who retired in June. Art Teacher David Mackey has been replaced by Linda Nickman, and Physical Education teacher Rebecca Mackey has been replaced by Sheryl Severance.

Rule Enforcer

A new addition to the high school will be a monitor who will patrol the halls and enforce regulations. These include the no-smoking policy, the ban against students spending time in hallways, and the rule that all students except seniors must remain on campus during the school day.

Reliable enrollment figures will not be available until the middle of this week, said Mr. Willever. It is difficult to obtain valid figures prior to opening day, he said, because many students walk in at the last minute and many families move during the summer and do not notify the District.

Last week — as opening day approached in the District — he will lead for just one year — the interim superintendent considered those things he feels are important.

Second to the selection of the superintendent, he wants to help bring a sense of ownership to the District. He would like to see parents, staff, and community have a voice in what occurs, and said he is "quite willing to share whatever so-called power I may have in giving a sense of ownership to faculty, students, and parents."

Mr. Willever said he was "a strong teacher advocate, who has great admiration and respect for what teachers do" and affirmed that teachers' rights must be protected with full due process.

"Saying all this, there will be accountability and fairly done evaluation," he said. Mr. Willever believes that staff must be evaluated in a fair and comprehensive way, and that only those teachers who are performing in an above-average manner should be retained.

40 New Teachers

This year, about 40 new teachers have been hired. Last year the figure was 20, and he anticipates 30 next year. Given this large number of non-tenured employees, "should we accept only mediocre performance, we will have performed in a manner lacking respect," said Mr. Willever.

The issue of tenured teachers who are no longer performing must also be addressed, he said. "There isn't any place in the teaching profession for people who are not functioning."

Among the administrative jobs that need to filled, in addition to the superintendent, are the assistant superintendent, high school principal, and two high school assistant principals.

Mr. Willever said he strongly believes that people on staff should be looked at as potential administrators, and should be encouraged to become certified. "I don't see much evidence of that here," he said. "I believe we have some very talented and capable principals, who should certainly be considered for at least an assistant superintendent position."

He would like to see the condition of some of the buildings improved, and wants to develop a five-year plan where this can be done in an orderly manner.

Another important task the interim superintendent sees ahead in the coming year is the need to respond to the consultants' report on the middle school. Principal William Johnson is currently working on developing a site-based committee composed of parents and staff who will look at the report together.

Returning to the search for a new superintendent, Mr. Willever said that, if he were a few years younger, Princeton would offer a wonderful opportunity. "There is a diverse and talented student population, supportive parents, and resources to operate an outstanding school district.

"It would be an educators' dream to be able to come and be an administrator in a school district such as this."

Five Juveniles Charged: Drinking, Smoking Pot

Three incidents involving juveniles were reported this week by Borough police.

Last Wednesday evening, five male youths were observed by Ptl. Michael Bender drinking and smoking a marijuana pipe in a car parked on Prospect Avenue.

The officer found whiskey, beer and malt liquor in the car. Four of the youths had marijuana pipes with marijuana residue in their possession. The five, all 16 and 17 years old, were later released to their parents and the case referred to the Borough juvenile officer. Three are residents of the Township, two are Borough residents.

Earlier the same evening, at 7:30, two boys were caught in the act of using dollar bills with tape attached in a candy machine in Princeton Medical Center.

If successful, the youths would not only be able to retrieve the bill, they would receive change and the candy item — "all three, if it works," said Lt. Anthony Federico.

The youths, both from the Borough, ages 13 and 14, were arrested and later released. The juvenile officer is continuing the investigation.

I Love Barney

Early last week, a 10-year-boy from the Borough was observed shoplifting a two-inch Barney figure valued at $2.50 from a Nassau Street toy store.

The theft preceded a report in the papers this week that a Florida parent has organized "The I Hate Barney Secret Society" for parents who bave grown weary of the purple dinosaur's popularity among children.

No Complaints Follow Unattended Purse Mixup

After Borough police had interviewed two couples involved in a Monday night assault that stemmed from an unattended purse, no one wished to sign a complaint.

As related by Capt. Anthony Federico, the incident began Monday night around 11:30 when two Princeton University students, a 19-year-old male from Scarsdale, N.Y. and a 17-year-old female from New Zealand noticed a purse lying unattended on a Palmer Square bus stop bench.

The students, Lt. Federico said, were rummaging through the purse to see who it belonged to when a 22-year-old East

Windsor resident approached them, saw what they were doing, and punched the male. He then pushed the female student to the bench when she started to intervene and grabbed the purse back.

According to Lt. Federico, the owner of the purse, a Township resident, and her East Windsor companion were sitting on the bench when she left to go across Nassau Street to make a phone call. After a few minutes her companion left to see what she was doing. The purse was left behind.

Following the assault, in which neither was injured, the two students went to police headquarters and reported what had happened.

Police searched the area and located the two suspects. After both sides gave their story to police, no one involved wished to sign a complaint, Lt. Federico said.

French Flower Market Reopens Friday Morning

The Garden Club of Princeton will reopen its flower market on Friday from 8:30 to 11:30 a.m. for the sale of fresh flowers and vegetables from members' gardens. The market, called the French Market, is at the intersection of Nassau Street, Mercer Street and University Place. Free parking is available to customers.

The French Market will be open six consecutive Fridays in the fall, through October 15, and then will reopen in the spring. Because members of the Garden Club of Princeton pick selections from their own gardens, it is difficult sometimes to predict what will be available for sale. However, everything is fresh and appealing.

This is the 75th year the Garden Club of Princeton, a member of The Garden Club of America, has held the French Market to raise funds for civic projects and donations to causes agreed upon by its members. The market was modelled on the flower booths in Paris, hence the name.

Last year more than $3000 was raised and distributed to numerous local and state organizations, including Brainwell House of the YWCA, Merwick and Memorial Park, the Princeton Public Library, Friends of Princeton Open Space, the Trash Troop, NJ Environmental Federation, and Isles.

Riding Stolen Bicycle, NYC Resident Charged

A New York City resident has been charged with four criminal offenses by Borough police, after he was apprehended early Monday morning riding a stolen bicycle on University Place.

Geoffrey E. Goodyear, 23, has been charged with receiving stolen property, theft, possession of more than 50 grams of marijuana and possession of CDS with intent to distribute. Unable to pay his $2,500 cash bail, Goodyear is being held in a Borough jail cell, awaiting transport to the Mercer County Jail. His arraignment date in the Borough is September 20.

Less than six hours after a Township resident had reported the theft of his 21-speed Schwinn mountain bike from the rear of a Wiggins Street home where he had left it for the evening, Ptl. Daniel Brown observed Goodyear riding a bike fitting that description on University Place at 5:04 Monday morning.

A Castle Is Not a Home For Tamas Barnabas

Tamas Barnabas, 42, who likes to dine in Princeton and then come up with a scheme for not paying his bill, visited Lee's Castle II in the Princeton Shopping Center early last week.

After eating a $9.30 meal he attempted to pay for it with a $270 postal money order.

When the owner indicated that a money order was not acceptable, only cash or a credit card, Mr. Barnabas, police said, "became upset and argumentative." He demanded that the owner accept his postal order.

When Mr. Barnabas refused to pay, the owner called police. In checking, Township police discovered there was an outstanding $500 warrant issued by Borough police for his arrest for failure to appear in court, and he was turned over to the Borough police.

Perfume Peddler Sidelined

Just before noon Friday, police responded to a report of a suspicious person selling perfume out of a bag on Nassau Street, a violation of a Borough ordinance.

Police found Howard O. Ryals, 23, of Bound Brook, and when a subsequent computer check revealed that Ryals was wanted in Virginia for failure to appear on a weapons charge, he was placed under arrest and taken to headquarters.

Ryals was not charged by Borough police but was turned over to the Mercer County Sheriff's Office for extradition to Virginia.

During the 20 minutes that a student left her purse in a lounge in the Graduate College at Princeton University last week, someone stole it. The victim lost $300.

The same day — last Tuesday — another student left his wallet unattended for an hour in a lounge between Mathey and Pyne Halls on campus. The wallet, valued at $350 by the victim and containing $300, was stolen, police said.

Last week, a student in the process of moving from Vandeventer Avenue to the University campus told police that his television set had been stolen sometime earlier from his apartment. Police report no sign of forced entry into the apartment.

A radio and a three-hole puneh worth a combined $50 were stolen from the Princeton Arts Council Building on Witherspoon Street. The building had been entered overnight by an intruder who forced open a window screen.

Township police report the theft of a $150 car sterco from a 1990 Geo convertihle while the car was parked in Lot 12 near the McMillan huilding on the University campus.

Police report the owner, a University employee, had locked the car hul had left a window down. A celluar telephone on the front seat was left behind.

Two bicyeles were taken. A Trek 720 mountain hike valued at $325 was stolen from a Birch Avenue porch. It had been locked with a Kryptonite lock but not seeured to a fixed ohject. A $300 Trek mountain hike was taken from in front of the West Coast Video store in the Princeton Shopping Center, where its Borough owner had left it unlocked.

Borough police also listed a bike theft: a student's white, 21-speed mountain bike from the side of 1908 Hall on the University campus. The victim had locked the bike to itself but not to a fixed ohject.

Tying Up Cardboard No Longer Required

The Mercer County Improvement Authority reminds residents that, as of September 1, hrown corrugated cardboard no longer has to be cut and tied for eurbside reeycling collection.

National Waste will add more trucks to the reeycling routes. The trucks will be identical to the packer trucks used to eollect and compact garbage at the eurh. The reason for the requirement that residents collapse, eut and tie cardhoard for recyeling was that the openings in the collection trucks were too small for whole boxes to fit into, according to Authority exeeutive Director Richard Van Noy. Now, size is no longer a prohlem and the Authority expects to see more hrown corrugated eardhoard in the reeycling collections as a result.

Mr. Van Noy says the cutting and tying of corrugated cardhoard was a disineentive to some to recycle and because of that, more cardhoard was making its way into the waste streem. He points out that hrown corrugated cardboard is designated as a recyclahle material in Mereer County and as such eannot be disposed of with household trash

Two Smoke Conditions On University Campus

Alarms were sounded for two fires on the University eampus last week. Neither one was serious.

At 5:10 Sunday morning there was a report of smoke in the Joline Hall dormitory but a subsequent cheek revealed that a hoiler room heater had backfired, sending smokc through the building. There were no injuries or damage — just smokc, police said.

Some 24 hours earlier, at 4:57 Saturday morning, police and firemen responded to a report of a fire in the first-floor atrium of the Engineering building.

Apparently, said Lt. Anthony Federico, employees using rags to clean the floor had left the rags piled in the middle of the floor and there was spontaneous comhustion.

Some water damage hut no fire damage, Lt. Federieo reported

Drug, Alcohol Program Begins for Young People

The Mercer Council on Alcoholism and Drug Addiction, MCADA, will begin its Adolescent Program — a drug and alcohol education and counseling program for young people — on September 23, at the Lawrenceville Preshyterian Church on Route 206 in Lawrenceville.

The program will be led by Betty Koehler, a certified alcoholism counselor with 17 years of experience in addictions. It will be held for eight evenings, from 6:30 to 8:30.

The program will offer educational presentations and group particiipation, and will focus on the participants' beliefs and attitudes about alcohol and drugs. Participants develop a sense of group identity hy sharing their experiences with others facing similar situations. Sessions include discussion abut drinking and driving, drugs other than alcohol, and family roles.

For more information about MCADA's Adolescent Program, call Ms. Koehler, the Council's community educator, at 396-5874.

He also invites community members to participate in his "Walk for Democracy" program. The walks usually leave around 4 or 5 p.m. from campaign headquarters and finish before dark, but the hours are flexible. Volunteers and supporters leave in groups of two and speak with neighbors about community issues.

The candidate's Independent campaign is focused on bringing ethics back to government and ending special-interest domination of politics. He has proposed term limits for politicians, tough campaign finance reform, and an end to pork-barrel spending.

Author of 'Race Matters' To Speak at Benefit

Cornel West, best-selling author of Race Matters, has agreed to speak about his book and lead a question and answer session at a benefit for the Crisis Ministry of Princeton and Trenton, on Sunday, September 26, at 4 at Nassau Presbyterian Church, 61 Nassau Street. There will be a reception immediately following Dr. West's presentation.

Cornel West graduated from Harvard University in 1973 and holds an M.A. and Ph.D. from Princeton. In addition to his activities at Princeton, he lectures widely at colleges, universities, religious and civic organizations. Recently, he was the W.E.B. DuBois Lecturer at Harvard. He is well known for his riveting speaking style, which has its roots in the Baptist Church.

Author of eight books, Dr. West is professor of religion and director of the Afro-American Studies Department at Princeton University. His work is thought-provoking and challenging, and he has been characterized by Henry Louis Gates Jr., head of Harvard's black-studies program as "the pre-eminent African American intellectual of our time."

Cornel West

For more than 10 years, the Crisis Ministry has served emergency needs of people in the Princeton and Trenton area, distributing food to the hungry, preventing evictions and foreclosures by assisting with rent and mortgage payments, assisting with utilities bills, and providing emergency housing. This year, the Crisis Ministry has distributed more than a ton of food a week and more than $75,000 in direct aid to people in need.

The continuing difficult economic situation has significantly increased the need, and the Crisis Ministry is one of the few agencies to fill the gaps in social services. These vital community services are provided through the support of individuals, foundations, local churches and synagogues, and through fund-raising events such as this.

Reservations are $15 per person (patrons, $75 per person) and $5 for students. All donations are tax-deductible. For information regarding donations and reservations, call 921-0181.

Tickets will not be mailed but advance-sale reservations will be held at the door. Admission may also be obtained at the door.

Cadwalader Heights Tour Features 9 Grand Homes

The third annual Cadwalader Heights House Tour will feature nine grand homes all within walking distance in one of Trenton's premier neighborhoods.

The tour will take place, rain or shine, on Saturday from noon to 5. Last year, more than 400 people took advantage of the opportunity to view these large, single-family homes from a bygone era boasting graciousness, charm and superior construction.

FROM AN EARLIER ERA: Built of Princeton quarry stone, this 1928 center hall Georgian Revival house at 908 Bellevue Avenue, Trenton, is one of the homes that will be open to the public on the Cadwalader Heights House Tour Saturday. Tickets at $5 per person are available from noon to 4 on the day of the tour at the Cadwalader-Asbury United Methodist Church on Stuyvesant Avenue, a block east of Parkside Avenue. Proceeds will benefit a local social service organization.

Cadwalader Heights, located in the western section of the city, is a neighborhood of 70 English Tudor, Georgian, Traditional, and Colonial homes overlooking historic Cadwalader Park. The park and the neighborhood were designed and laid out at the turn of the century by Frederick Law Olmsted, the designer of New York City's Central Park.

In the heart of the park is Ellarslie, the Trenton City Museum. This Italianate mansion houses a permanent collection depicting Trenton's rich industrial and ceramic heritage, and a changing exhibit of works by local artists. The museum will be open during the time of the house tour.

Cadwalader Heights was developed between 1910 and 1930; one of the requirements for construction was that each house be of artistic architecture, conforming with the natural beauty of the section. Land developer Edmund C. Hill in 1906 described Cadwalader Heights as "a beautiful tract for high class residences on Trenton's most picturesque highlands." He stated that the area was perfect for persons of refinement contemplating the construction of eloquent homes which combined the advantages of city improvements with the charm of the country.

In recent years, the community has attracted new residents interested in the historical significanec of the architecture as well as the sound value of their investment. Homes that fell into disrepair during the late 1960s and '70s have been restored to their original splendor.

Proceeds from the tour will benefit local social services organizations. In the past, the Cadwalader Heights Civic Association has supported the reforestation of the neighborhood, LIFT, the Trenton Area Soup Kitchen, and Rainbow House, the nation's first group home for HIV-positive adolescents.

Members of the Cadwalader-Asbury United Methodist Church will sell food and beverages throughout the day. The church's pipe organ will be played by local organists during the tour.

The neighborhood is situated two blocks off Route 29 on Parkside Avenue. Tickets, priced at $5, will be available on the day of the tour at the Cadwalader-Ashury United Methodist Church located at 900 Stuyvesant Avenue.

PEOPLE
In the News

David Popenoe of Moore Street, an associate dean of social and behavioral sciences at Rutgers University, has a long list of culprits he says are responsible for the breakdown of the American family: television, violence, the sexual revolution, the decline of religion, materialism, individualism, feminism, urban life and anti-family business policies.

The co-founder of the pro-family group, Council of Families in America, he will espouse his theories on the family in a lecture, "Bringing Back the Family," to be held Tuesday at 11 in Kerney Hall on Mercer County Community College's James Kerney Campus, North Broad and Academy streets, Trenton. The talk is free and open to the public.

A proponent of the movement known as "New Familism," Dean Popenoe believes that society should find ways to encourage parents to stay married and women to remain at home with small children. On the public policy level, he advocates welfare reform, family leave, tax breaks for families and tracking down deadbeat dads.

Alfred H. Sommer, a former area resident, has received the Gold Medal award from the International Society for Optical Engineering. He was honored for his pioneering work in the production of the first high sensitivity panchromatic photocathode, essential to the development of black-and-white and early color television.

After retirement from RCA Labs, he became a full-time consultant for 15 years and now lives in Northampton, Mass.

Raymond Tamasi, son of Pearl and Domenico Tamasi, 6 Southern Way, has been selected for the 1993-94 edition of Who's Who in the East.

Mr. Tamasi is the president of Gosnold on Cape Cod, a nationally accredited addiction treatment center. He is a 1963 graduate of Rutgers University and holds a masters' degree from Cambridge (Mass.) College.

Lawrence Borkowski of Hopewell Township, a certified public accountant, has been appointed to the Helene Fuld Medical Center board of governors.

Mr. Borkowski is the chief auditor at BMJ Financial Corporation in Bordentown. Previously, he was vice president and controller for Cenlar Federal Savings Bank in Princeton.

He received a bachelor's degree in business administration from Rutgers College and an MBA from Rutgers Graduate School of Business. He is past president of the Princeton Area Communities United Way and a member of its board of trustees and executive committee.

Michael Burns, an architect with offices at 234 Nassau Street, is collaborating with Urs P. Gauchat, dean of the School of Architecture at the New Jersey Institute of Technology in Newark, and several of its architecture students, in designing a 52-acre science park in the University Heights neighborhood of Newark.

A press conference was held recently at which Mr. Burns and Dean Gauchat, who is also principal of his own architectural firm in Boston, unveiled a concept master plan for the park. The presentation included a model measuring seven feet by 20 feet which was constructed by the students under the guidance of the two architects. The model will be on exhibit at the Newark Museum during the month of September.

The development of the area is a collaborative undertaking by the four academic institutions in the area, Rutgers University, NJIT, Essex County Community College and the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, as well as the private sector. Originally conceived as a science park for research and development, the project now also includes retail space, recreational areas, public space and a mix of housing, both rental and individually owned, for the public, elderly, students and government subsidized residents.

Alfred H. Sommer

The total project anticipates one million square feet of R&D, retail and commercial space, and several hundred residential units. The plan is designed to include integration of existing structures, including the historic Newark jail, the cable network station on Central Avenue, the Lock Street apartments and the old Howard Savings Bank.

Susan Klein of Herrontown Road has resigned her position as director of admissions at Solebury School in New Hope, Pa., to go to Armenia. Ms. Klein has received a Time Out grant from Vassar College, her alma mater, that will enable her to work with crafts people in Armenia and help them organize into a co-operative so that they can market their crafts outside the country.

Vassar graduates age 40 and up may apply for the annual grant of $25,000 generated by an anonymous gift that encourages women to take time out to do something outside their present profession. Ms. Klein was selected from more than 100 who submitted proposals.

Daughter of a family that came from the section of Armenia which became part of Turkey after World War I, she went to Armenia in 1991 with a group of Armenian/Americans. She visited the city of Gumri, which had been hard hit by the earthquake. Touched by the conditions of life in Armenia and how removed it was from what we know in the West, she decided she would like to go back and spend time actually doing something for the people.

Susan Klein

She departs in September for Yerevan, the capital of Armenia, and expects to live there for a year.

Air Force Major Ricardo DiCocco, son of retired Chief Master Sergeant Severino and Anne Maria K. DiCocco, 77 Poor Farm Road, Pennington, has been decorated with the Meritorious Service Medal.

The medal is awarded for outstanding non-combat meritorious achievement for service to the United States.

A staff development engineering manager, he received a master's degree in 1984 from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Aristedes W. Georgantas, 81 Cleveland Lane, chairman and chief executive officer of Chemical Bank New Jersey, has been elected chairman of the newly organized Foundation for New Jersey Public Broadcasting. He will head the group of prominent citizens from throughout the Garden State who have been appointed to The NJN Foundation.

Established by an act of the New Jersey State Legislature, The Foundation was created to improve the fundraising and promotions capabilities of New Jersey Network, the state's public broadcasting system. The Foundation replaces the Friends of New Jersey Network, NJN's original community-based volunteer group, as the fundraising arm of the New Jersey Public Broadcasting Authority, the board which oversees NJN.

IT'S TRUE THAT GOD HEALS.

Since God isn't a far-off ideal, but divine Love, always here — "a very present help in trouble," as the Bible says — it's natural that He should heal.

Many people have found this true, not only in Bible times but today. If you'd like to hear some personal experiences of healing, visit our Wednesday evening testimony meeting. We'd love to have you come.

Two-Year Renovation of Bainbridge House Ends in Reopening This Sunday

The Historical Society will hold an open house Sunday from noon to four to celebrate the reopening of its headquarters at Bainbridge House. The historic Princeton landmark has been closed for restoration since August, 1991.

The open house also marks the opening of two new exhibits. "Highlights of Princeton History," which provides an overview from Indian times to the present day, will be on view for three years. It is located in the space formerly occupied by the Museum Shop.

The other exhibit, "Building a Community: Italian Americans of Princeton," focuses on the immigrant experience and presents a wide range of illustrative materials contributed by Princeton residents. It is located in the two downstairs parlors and the exhibit space in the rear.

Visitors to Bainbridge House will find much that is unchanged in the venerable building. Built in 1766 by Joh Stockton, a prosperous tanner and cousin of Richard Stockton, signer of the Declaration of Independence, Bainbridge House is one of the oldest surviving buildings in Princeton and one of its best preserved examples of mid-Georgian architecture.

It has been home to several Stockton families, and in 1783 was listed as providing accommodations for members of the Continental Congress. The house owes its name to the fact that it was the birthplace of William Bainbridge, hero of the War of 1812. Less well known is the fact that Princeton University bought the house in 1877 from the Stocktons and used it as a rooming house for students until it was rented to the Princeton Puhlic Library in 1910.

When the Library moved to its present building in 1967, the Historical Society established its headquarters in Bainbridge House. The Society undertook some restoration of the exterior in 1968. The bricks were cleaned and pointed, the front door and the cornice restored and some paint testing of the trim undertaken.

In 1987, William Short, an architect with Short & Ford whose specialty was preservation or restoration of historic buildings, drew up a preservation plan for the interior. Mr. Short, a trustee and interested member of the Society, died in 1991, and the project was carried out by Michael Mills of the firm now known as Ford Farewell Mills and Gatsch.

The plan was shelved while Society undertook a $1.25 million fundraising campaign to restore the house, augment its endowment and expand public programming. The restoration was funded in part hy a matching grant from the New Jersey Historic Trust. It took much longer than anticipated, partly because of delays in ohtaining permits from various state and local agencies.

Bainbridge House

One stumbling block was how to make the building wheelchair accessible without detracting from its architecture. The solution, taken from an early photograph of the building, was to install a pretty fence across the front with the requisite cement ramp behind it on one side. The Historical Society originally wanted an iron fence that would look like wood but be more durable, but state historic preservation officials insisted on wood.

Inside, the basic layout of the rooms is much the same, minus the lally columns that were installed by the Public Library to support the weight of bookshelves on the second floor. Unseen structural supports inserted in the walls, the floors, the ceilings, the basement and attic have taken their place.

"Bainbridge House feels like a firmer building," remarks Wanda Gunning, Historical Society president. Gone too are the old fashioned radiators. Ventilation is provided through grills laid in the floors. The entire heating, ventilating and air conditioning system has been upgraded, with every piece of duct work having had to be custom fabricated to fit in the available spaces.

According to Mrs. Gunning, museums today require special climate control, creating a combination of temperature and humidity that will not only be right for the collections, but also for the building and the individuals who visit or work there. The system needs constant monitoring and can not have radical fluctuations without causing damage.

To conserve heat and energy, there are new storm windows, painted to match the window trim and held in place on the interior with velcro.

To meet fire code, the house has three sprinkler systems, including some placed discreetly under the eaves to wet the outside in case the wood sheathing should catch fire. It also has fire alarm and smoke detector systems.

The exhibit rooms have been equipped with state of the art lighting that can be programmed by computer. There is also an elaborate security/surveillance system in place.

To improve circulation through the long narrow exhibit room in the back, a new doorway was created into the adjoining parlor. The Museum Shop has been relocated to the front of the building, to the right of the front door, where it has more space and more light. Barbara Garretson, former proprietor of Clayton's on Palmer Square, has expanded the merchandise to include many more books and other items related to Princeton.

Orientation Exhibit

The room which used to house the shop has been turned into an exhibit room. Here the Society has mounted what it calls its orientation exhibit, to give visitors, especially groups of school children, a quick overview of Princeton history. The exhibition is organized into six chronological sections, starting with Aboriginal Culture and Early Settlement and leaping quickly to the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries.

Paintings, artifacts or photographs relating to the founding of the College, The Battle of Princeton and the Continental Congress, transportation and commerce in the 19th century and some of the famous people who have lived here are arranged in a fairly small space.

The one aspect of the renovation that is likely to cause comment is the color of the trim in some of the rooms. The Historical Society retained Frank Welch of Ardmore, Pa., to do a paint analysis, and the colors are based on historic paint chips he uncovered. The walls throughout are white, but the color of the wood trim varies.

Downstairs it is a creamy pumpkin. Upstairs the trim in two rooms is a strong robin's egg blue. Another room has seafoam green trim, while still another has a purplish hue. The original pine board flooring has been enhanced with a coat of tung oil — no controversy there. Small restroom facilities for the staff and a small kitchen are among the amenities included in the second floor renovations.

The second floor contains offices for the new director, Gail F. Stern, and the new curator of education, Patricia Bruttomesso, who has just arrived. Ms. Stern succeeds Emily Wallace who left at the end of 1992 to go back to graduate school at the University of Pennsylvania. Ms. Wallace was present throughout the planning and fundraising and had moved the Society into temporary quarters before she resigned.

Ms. Stern comes to Princeton from the Balch Institute for Ethnic Studies in Philadelphia, where she was museum director. Ms. Bruttomesso expects to receive her Ph.D. in U.S. History from the University of Chicago in 1994 and has had extensive experience in museum interpretation and educational program development.

New Library

The one on-going member of the staff is Susanna Ornstein, the administrator. In addition to an office for each, there is a board room and the new library on the second floor. The library has been endowed by William and Gertrude Scheide.

The Historical Society's extensive glass plate negative collection and its many photographs are now housed in a workroom on the third floor, which also contains the architectural archives. The photo workroom has been refurbished and endowed by a gift from Mrs. David McAlpin. The architectural archives have been endowed by a bequest from Mr. Short and gifts in his memory.

The costume collection is also located on the third floor. Downstairs, the temporary exhibition gallery in which the exhibit on Italian-Americans in Princeton is opening, was endowed by Alex and Katherine Ettl.

Bainbridge House, then, serves dual functions as headquarters and historic house museum, as Mr. Mills puts it. The purpose of the renovation was "to create a museum environment while retaining the existing character of the building," Mr. Mills says.

"That meant not adhering to any one particular time period. Victorian moldings have been left in 18th-century rooms. Although we found that the fireplace in the front 'parlor' was a later addition, there was no thought of removing it. There has been no attempt to remake the house."

According to Constance Greiff, immediate past president of the Historical Society who served as chairman of the building committee, Bainbridge House was a family house changed by every generation who lived in it. Mrs. Greiff, author of Princeton Architecture and owner/operator of Heritage Studies, a firm that undertakes historical studies on commission, believes that an historic house should show a little bit of its age, and in the case of Bainbridge House it looks as if it had been used "cheerfully and well" since it was built.

Princeton residents who can't make it to the open house on Sunday should nonetheless make a point of stopping by another time. Bainbridge House is open Tuesday through Sunday from noon to 4, and admission is free.

Griggs Farm

and smaller single-family homes to estate homes of more than 4,000 square feet of living space, but the company is not associated with affordable housing projects per se.

The executive vice president of A.P. Orleans for marketing and sales, Delano Purscell, declined to be interviewed for this article, saying it was "inappropriate" to comment in the press in advance of the Township Committee meeting this Wednesday. Mr. Purscell called the matter "a sensitive business issue" with the Township but said he would be glad to provide any additional information after the meeting.

Orleans was retained by Princeton Township in 1991 to sell 52 unsold Griggs Farm market-rate townhouses after the Township took over the project from Princeton Community Housing in the spring of 1990. PCH is the nonprofit community housing organization that developed the 25-acre site for the Township with the aim of providing badly needed housing for families and individuals in the low- and moderate-income range.

The 280-unit project was designed to provide 140 units towards the Township's affordable housing quota established by the state Council on Affordable Housing, along with 140 units to be sold at market rates. The 212 units that have been completed to date include 94 market units and 118 affordable sale and rental units. The 68 units to be built in Courtyard IV will include 22 units sold to moderate-income purchasers under Township Housing Board rules; the other 46 will be sold at market rates.

52 Units Sold Rapidly

Taking advantage of a slight rise in the housing market in the summer and early fall of 1991, reduced prices, revamped models, low interest rates and its own sales experience, Orleans was able to sell off the 52 units rapidly. The Township paid all the expenses associated with maintaining and staffing a sales office and advertising the units as well as attorney costs associated with the closings. It also paid the salary and traveling expenses of an assistant superintendent to prepare the units for closing.

Orleans received a 3.5 percent commission on the gross sales price of each unit. With prices established at a high of $108,490 with various amenities and a low of $89,990, the total came to some $4.9 million in sales value. The contract with the Township included an agreement to negotiate on completing the remaining 68 units in Courtyard IV.

A year ago, Orleans submitted a bid on Courtyard IV, the terms of which have not been made public, but which the Township is understood to have rejected as being too costly.

Meanwhile, Stephen O'Connor, who, as vice president of the residential development of Matrix Development Corp., was one of a handful of experts invited in the summer of 1989 by then-Mayor Phyllis Marchand to help boost faltering sales at Griggs Farm, saw an opportunity to be of further assistance.

Mr. O'Connor is a Griggs Farm resident. He sold his first house in Princeton, on Laurel Road, and bought a Griggs Farm townhouse when he decided to work on his Ph.D. in housing and urban planning at Rutgers full time. He did so partly to keep his children in Princeton schools and partly to take advantage of the price reductions at Griggs Farm. As an independent consultant, he got in touch with Martin Johnson, founder and executive director of Isles, who also saw an opportunity for Isles at Griggs Farm, and together they developed a proposal for Courtyard IV.

"Better Projects"

Last March, Mr. O'Connor was hired as the first executive director of the New Jersey Housing Assistance Corp., a subsidiary of the New Jersey Housing and Mortgage Finance Agency established to help municipalities meet the affordable housing needs of the state. Capitalized at $5 million, the NJHAC provides financial and technical resources to assist for-profit as well as non-profit developers "do more and better projects," as he puts it.

Now that he is wearing this hat, his relationship with Mr. Johnson and Isles is one of a joint partnership. The NJHAC is pledging between $400,000 and $500,000 for the up-front costs, Mr. O'Connor says, and several banks have indicated an interest in providing the construction financing. As he points out, much of the hard work to complete Courtyard IV — the road base, storm and sanitary sewers, electric lines and water lines — is already in place.

However, when the project was turned over to the Township, Courtyard IV was not separated out from the Master Deed. The Township received the development rights to Courtyard IV, but the land on which it is to be built, like all the land at the project, is owned in common by the Griggs Farm Homeowners Association, representing the 212 property owners of the existing units.

This complicates things for a developer when it comes to approaching a lending association for a loan or in making any changes in the footprint of the new units.

> "We think we can exceed $1 million (in profit). But let's not repeat the mistakes of the past. There is still a history of Griggs Farm to overcome, and we must proceed cautiously."

Mr. O'Connor says that from the outset, the Township made it clear it wants to make $1 million on Courtyard IV to offset the $7 million deficit incurred by Griggs Farm. "We said, because of the history of the project and the fact that the Township doesn't own the land at Griggs Farm, only the development rights for Courtyard IV, we'd be willing to guarantee $750,000, predicated on an average selling price per unit of $118,000," Mr. O'Connor states.

"Furthermore, if the market accepts our product and allows us to increase prices, whatever profit we make we would share with the Township on a 50/50 basis." The most recent sale of a Griggs Farm market rate unit occured in July, when a townhouse in David Brearly Court sold for $120,000. Mr. O'Connor feels pegging the average selling price at $118,00 is very conservative, and there is a strong possibility of the Township realizing its $1 million.

"We think we can exceed $1 million," he says. "But let's not repeat the mistakes of the past.

There is still the history of Griggs Farm to overcome, and we must proceed cautiously." He adds, "We also told the Housing Board, that if the Township truly wants to be able to walk away from the project, as they said it did, we would pay them $500,000 cash for the development rights, and they would be out of it. They never responded."

Mr. O'Connor and Mr. Johnson say that Orleans' initial proposal would have required the Township to float a bond for construction financing, obligating the taxpayer, just as it did for PCH, but that after Isles made its offer, Orleans matched it, scrapping its earlier proposal. Just what Orleans is proposing won't by known until Wednesday night, but the contest could turn out to involve matters not strictly financial.

Additional Amenities

Both firms are proposing architectural elements designed to enliven the facades of the townhouses. Isles is proposing to add a basement in which utilities and appliances that are presently taking up living or storage space could be relocated. A basement would also create additional living and/or storage space.

Orleans is proposing to add garages for the townhouses, but no other details are known. Any change in the basic footprint that was approved by the Planning Board in 1986 when the project was in the planning stages would have to be approved, not only by the Planning Board but also by two-thirds of the existing owners and their lenders.

Isles is exploring with PSE&G the possibility of bringing natural gas to the site. The heat pumps used in the existing units run on electricity, and gas is seen as being more cost efficient.

Orleans is expected to underscore its longer and more extensive experience in residential housing as well as its success in selling the 52 units at Griggs Farm in 1991. The recommendation of the Township Housing Board to Township Committee was not only to proceed with Courtyard IV but also that Orleans be selected as the developer. At the urging of officers of the Griggs Farm Homeowners Association, Township Mayor Laurence Glasberg agreed to hear presentations from both developers in public.

"Urban Gardeners"

According to Mr. Johnson, Isles feels that it is perceived as a "bunch of urban gardeners" and the deck is stacked against it, possibly because it is a nonprofit organization. "If we were on a level playing ground, and the numbers are compelling, we should get the job," he says.

To counter the perception that it lacks experience, Isles has assembled a team of professionals. In addition to Mr. O'Connor, who brings more than 12 years of residential sales, marketing and development experience to the project, the team includes David Styner, associate director of the Isles Affordable Housing Program, with more than 25 years of construction experience. Mr. Styner has owned and operated his own construction firm in addition to serving as project manager for a variety of real estate interests and developments.

The architect for the project is Cody Eckert, principal of her own firm established in Princeton in 1983. Ms. Eckert has been involved in two affordable housing projects as well as the renovation of the State Theater in New Brunswick. Another member of the team is Peter Kasabach, a graduate of the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania, where he specialized in real estate finance and development.

Dick Metzler, a construction consultant with more than 30 years of residential and commercial real estate experience, will be retained to provide on-site construction management for Courtyard IV construction if Isles wins the contract.

Heading the team will be Mr. Johnson, Isles' founder and executive director.

A 1981 graduate of Princeton University and its Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Policy, he has travelled extensively, lecturing and promoting the benefits of community development and affordable housing. He is the founder and president of the Community Loan Fund and board treasurer for the Nonprofit Affordable Housing Network of New Jersey.

Griggs Farm residents are likely to be on hand Wednesday night to hear the two proposals. Since the outside of all the buildings is common property, the quality of construction of new buildings and their design is a concern to current owners.

For the Township, completion of Courtyard IV means the addition of 22 units toward the quota of 275 affordable units assigned by the Council on Affordable Housing, a not insignificant number given the scarcity of affordable developable land and the fact the time in which the quota must be met is running out.

For two developers, the opportunity to be selected for a project in Princeton is enough to get the competitive juices flowing. The evening should be an interesting one Princeton Township Residents... Tax Disaster Alert.

CAN YOU AFFORD TO BUY THE TOWN GOVERNMENT A NEW $9,000,000 BUILDING?

This sudden proposal is actually being acted on now.
It would boost tax bills dramatically and triple our municipal debt.

Add this on top of the existing proposals for:
• A new Library •
• $5,600,000 for the Institute Woods •
• Major new Mt. Laurel housing expenditures. •
(And we have just begun to pay for the new $2,000,000 fire house.)
At a time when families and businesses are forced to cut their budgets our public servants continue to spend.
Now a concerned citizens group has been formed to bring reason back into the process. We want to make sure that the town tries to live within its means. We urge you to join us. Please show your support by calling:

Citizens for Fiscal Responsibility — 924-4729

*Township Committee members will vote your wishes if you are there to make them known. The next Township Committee meeting is on Monday, September 13th at 7:30 p.m.
The following evening, Tuesday, September 14th at 6:30 p.m. is a special session to pick the architect for this $9 million municipal project. Townhall is located at 369 Witherspoon Street at the Corner of Valley Road.

Classes at McCarter For Children and Adults

The McCarter Theatre Outreach Department is planning a fall session of theater classes with a diverse group of course offerings for adults and children of all experience levels.

This season, McCarter Outreach celebrates the fifth anniversary of its Youth Conservatory for students in grades K through 12. Class space is limited and is filled on a first come-first served basis. Interested students and parents are invited to attend an Open House on Tuesday from 5 to 6 p.m. at the Artworks Building on Stockton Street.

The annual event gives students and parents an opportunity to meet McCarter's Youth Conservatory teachers and to learn more about individual classes.

Fall classes include creative drama for grades K-one, acting and play development for grades two-three and four-six, and advanced acting technique for middle and high school students. All youth classes run for ten sessions on selected weekday afternoons and are taught by Outreach professionals Pamela Ward, Leslie Hempling and Susan Garrett.

McCarter's fall curriculum for adults offers classes ranging from the beginning to the advanced level. Performance Technique, taught by McCarter's education director Laura Huntsman, is a beginning class devoted to the development of the actor's process. Participants take part in a variety of theatre games and exercises and explore the technique of acting in short scenes. The ten-session class runs on Tuesdays from 7 to 9, September 21 through December 14.

McCarter's new Intermediate Acting/Scene Study course will emphasize character and script analysis, performance technique and style through the use of classical and modern scenes. The class meets for ten weeks on Wednesdays from 7 to 9, September 29 through December 8 and will be taught by professional actress/teacher Susan Garrett.

McCarter will also offer a class devoted to the art of improvisation. Beginning improvisation will introduce participants to theatrical improvisation through a series of theater games and exercises. The ten-week class meets on Mondays 7 to 9, September 27 through November 29.

McCarter will also offer an intensive new performance-based course designed for advanced actors. Character Development: From Process to Performance will focus on the process of developing a character from script-reading to actual performance. Students will work as an ensemble on a selected classical play, which will culminate in a series of public performances.

The class is open by audition only and will be led by veteran actor and director, Richard Leighton. Class dates are Mondays 6:30 to 9:30, September 13 through December 13. Performances are scheduled for the week of December 13.

To schedule an audition, call McCarter Outreach at 683-9100, extension 6166.

Princeton Arts Council Presents New Production

The Princeton Arts Council will present the premiere performance of The Sound of a Distant Drum, a play by Judith McNally. It is directed by Judith Robinson.

"The play, both comic and serious, is partly written and partly improvised," says Ms. McNally. "I wanted to give the actors a larger freedom than usual to make their own contributions to the written text."

Ms. McNally's first play, Birdland, was optioned by the New Federal Theater in New York. Her short play, The Bonsai Tree, was published by Lamia Ink! in connection with La Mama. She is also the author of Jigsaw, a novel published by Macmillan. Her awards include a Prose Fellowship from the New Jersey State Council on the Arts and a National Endowment for the Humanities grant. She has taught creative writing at City University of New York Baruch College and currently at Mercer County Community College.

Ms. Robinson is a professional actress and director. Her extensive experience includes originating a role on Broadway in William Inge's Dark at the Top of the Stairs, performances in national tours, Off-Broadway and as a guest artist at Princeton University. She has also appeared on television as a main character for two years on The Guiding Light and on many other programs.

She has taught in New York at the American Theatre Wing, her own mime studio, and at the 92nd Street Y.H.M.A. In the Princeton area, her teaching includes acting classes at the Princeton Arts Council, Mercer County Community College, and the High School for Performing Arts.

The cast members are Curtis Kaine, Cheryl Curbishley, Jake Jones Jr., Julie Horigan, Emmanuelle Gaborit, Tom Curbishley, and Jerry Coleman. The stage manager is Maura Sheey.

There will be two performances, Saturday, September 18, at 8 p.m. and on Sunday, September 19 at 3.

The Arts Council is located at 102 Witherspoon Street. For information and reservations, call 921-3349.

children in grades two through eight. Classes begin Monday. Center Stage helps to bring out the natural performer in every child, develop skills, and experience the thrill of performing before an audience.

Classes for grades two, three and four introduce children to theater through comedy using slapstick, pratfalls, clowning, tumbling and pantomime skills. Characters are developed through storytelling. Children are given opportunities for performance, as their skills develop.

Classes for grades five and six use improvisation and theater games to explore characters and situations. Working together as a team to create performances is an important part of the program. Children begin developing focus and concentration. As each performer finds his or her voice, the characters are developed in a play. Children are given opportunities to perform for the public.

Classes for grades seven and eight explore a variety of characters and situations using a more formal, structured approach. Emphasis is on developing concentration and extending the performers range. Performers are given more responsibility as stage actors and/or film makers. The technical aspects of the performing arts are introduced through video-making and by creating short films. The program culminates in a public presentation.

The workshop program consists of one or several sessions taught by visiting theater professionals from New York and Los Angeles. Individual workshops, from set design and construction, stage combat, and Shakespeare for actors, to getting into the acting business as a professional, are included. Some workshops will be open to adults, with separate sessions where appropriate. Enrollment in Princeton Center Stage classes is not required for attendance.

Classes meet after school on the campus of Princeton Day School, The Great Road.

For additional information and a brochure, call Thomas von Oehsen or Ev Therrien at 466-4755.

George Street Playhouse Announces 20th Season

George Street Playhouse Producing Artistic Director Gregory S. Hurst has announced the production of five world premiere plays for the theater's 20th anniversary seven-play season.

Belmont Avenue Social Club, a suspenseful, often satirical confrontation of racism, sexism and small-time political power struggles in an urban social club in which backroom politics takes center stage, will be produced from September 18 to October 16. Bruce Graham is the author and the director will be Gregory S. Hurst.

In Sheer Boredom by John Viscardi, a young man who can't stand to be alone with his own thoughts is working the night shift as a doorman. The witty world-premiere comedy, directed by Tom Bullard, challenges the conventions of theatricality and reality. It will occupy the Playhouse stage from October 23 to November 14.

Lynn Martin's Summer Feet Hearts, November 27 to December 19, is a heartwarming play about three generations of Southern women and the father/grandfather who returns home after a long absence. Wendy Liscow will direct.

P'ton University Concerts Will Begin Its 99th Year

A limited number of season subscriptions are still available to the 99th season of Princeton University Concerts.

Founded in 1894, the ongoing series of eminent musical events is one of the oldest in the United States. Again this year, the programs are divided into two series and a special bonus concert offering Princeton audiences the opportunity to hear the world's most respected musicians in the splendid acoustical environment of Richardson Auditorium in Alexander Hall. All concerts are Thursday evenings at 8.

The Chamber Masterworks Series features outstanding ensembles in six programs including favorite works of the masters as well as rarely-heard and contemporary compositions. The series opens on September 23 with a performance by the Tokyo String Quartet. The program includes the Schubert Quartet in D Major, D.94; Beethoven's Quartet in A Minor, Opus 132; and the First Quartet, Kreutzer Sonata, of Janacek.

On November 11, Princeton University Concerts will be one of the first presenters in the nation to offer a program by a newly-formed quartet whose members are all outstanding solo performers. Violinist Pamela Frank, violist Paul Neubauer, violoncellist Carter Brey, and pianist Christopher O'Riley have teamed up to present an unusual program of three piano quartets by Mozart, Brahms, and contemporary American composer Aaron Jay Kernis.

First heard in Princeton at the 1988 Summer Chamber Concerts, the Takacs String Quartet returns to Princeton on January 20, 1994, with a program of masterworks: the Quartet in F Major, Opus 77 no. 2, of Franz Joseph Haydn; Bela Bartok's Sixth Quartet, and the Quartet in C Major, Opus 59 no. 3, of Ludwig van Beethoven.

University Concerts has a long history of presenting young performers and new ensembles; that tradition continues on February 10 with an appearance of the Brentano String Quartet, four young musicians from Juilliard who are drawing rave reviews wherever they play. The Brentano's ambitious program includes readings of Alban Berg's Opus 3 Quartet; Beethoven's Quartet in F Major, Opus 135; and the Princeton premiere of Milton Babbitt's Sixth String Quartet, composed expressly for the Brentano.

England's Lindsay String Quartet returns to Richardson Auditorium on March 24 heard in a program of works by Mozart (Quartet in D Major, K. 575), Borodin (Quartet No. 2 in D Major), and Debussy (the Quartet in G Minor, Opus 10).

The Chamber Masterworks season closes on May 12 with the Muir String Quartet and pianist Joseph Kalichstein joining forces in a program which includes not only the Dvorak Piano Quintet in A Major, but also Beethoven's Quartet Opus 18 no. 4, and Richard Danielpour's Quartet No. 2, Shadow Dances.

Seating for the Chamber Masterworks Series is all reserved. Subscriptions in most locations will be available until September 23.

Recital Series

This year's Richardson Recital Series again offers a season of solo performances. Pianist Robert Taub opens the series on December 2 with a program of works by Berg, Babbitt, Brahms, and Beethoven's Waldstein Sonata. Mr. Taub, a graduate of Princeton University and resident of Princeton, has been heard in concerto appearances with the Princeton University Orchestra and the Chamber Symphony of Princeton.

Judith Nicosia Civitano

On February 3 violinist Gil Shaham will give a recital. At 21, Mr. Shaham is already acclaimed as "a veteran virtuoso" throughout the world, and is in such demand as an orchestral soloist with major orchestras in the United States and abroad that he performs only a few solo recitals each year.

Violoncellist Gustav Rivinius will return to Princeton April 7. Mr. Rivinius appeared at Taplin Auditorium just prior to his New York debut in 1990, and his career has enjoyed a meteoric rise since then. His program includes sonatas of Beethoven, Schnittke, and Rachmaninoff and concludes the recital series for the season.

Seating for the Richardson Recital Series is unreserved. The opportunity to meet the artists over wine and cheese at a reception following each recital has become a tradition. Subscriptions will be available until December 2.

The Special Bonus Concert, on October 28, presents The Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center in a program of music for winds and piano, including Poulenc's Trio for Oboe, Bassoon, and Piano; Debussy's First Rhapsody for Clarinet and Piano; and Quintets for Piano and Winds by Beethoven and Mozart. Members of The Chamber Music Society include Stephen Taylor, oboe; David Shifrin, clarinet; Robert Routch, horn; and Lee Luvisi, piano. They will be joined by guest artist Frank Morelli, bassoon.

Subscriptions to either series or all ten concerts, priced between $50 and $184, are available by calling the Princeton University Concerts Direct Subscription Line, 258-2800.

Tickets to single events (including the Special Bonus Concert) will go on sale Monday, September 13, at the Richardson Auditorium box office, open from noon to 6, Monday through Friday. The phone number is 258-5000.

Visa and MasterCard are accepted at both numbers, but subscriptions are not sold at Richardson Auditorium.

Humorous Texts, Tunes In Concert by Soprano

In celebration of the 50th anniversary year of The Friends of Music at Princeton, a special series of concerts will take place throughout the 1993-94 season. Called the "Community Series," the programs will reflect the long-standing relationship between the musical resources of the greater Princeton community and those of Princeton University by presenting well-known area musicians in programs of unusual interest.

For the first event of the series, The Friends will present soprano Judith Nicosia Civitano in a program entitled "A Serious Afternoon of Humorous Music" which will include a variety of works with comical texts and tunes by composers ranging from J.S. to P.D.Q. Bach. The concert will take place Sunday, September 19, at 3 at Taplin Auditorium in Fine Hall on the Princeton University campus.

Ms. Civitano will present many different aspects of musical and textual humor in at least five languages." She has promised that "there will not be a serious song or aria in sight," and "every possible encore will already be included in the program, thereby saving the audience the necessity of clapping excessively at the conclusion."

Ms. Civitano has participated in many local musical activities including the Princeton University Opera Theater. Known for her performances of contemporary music, she has been a guest artist with the Da Capo Chamber Players, the New York New Music Ensemble, the Composers Guild of New Jersey, and has sung with the Opera Orchestra of New York, the Princeton Pro Musica, and the orchestras of such cities as Montreal, Quebec, Hartford, Nashville.

Her accompanist, pianist Luba Sindler, was born in Leningrad, Russia, where she attended The School for Gifted Children and later graduated with honors from The Leningrad State Conservatory. She was a prize-winner at the National Piano competition in Moscow, and won first prize at the National Chamber Music Competition in Leningrad and Ufa. After coming to the United States in 1987, Ms. Sindler became established as a soloist, chamber musician, and teacher.

Currently enrolled in the doctoral program at Rutgers University, she will release her first CD in collaboration with violinist Rimma Sushanskaya in December.

The recital is open to the public without admission charge. Fine Hall is located at the corner of Ivy Lane and Washington Road. For further information, call 258-5000.

The coffee house is an informal place where folks of all ages can sing along with the performers, make new friends and be part of the folk music scene while enjoying a reasonably priced night out. Mary Ellen's homebaked edibles are available along with coffee and teas. Mindful of the environment, Horizons asks patrons to bring their own mug.

ART

Course Schedule for Fall Announced by Artworks

Artworks, the visual arts school of Princeton and Trenton, has announced its fall classes for 1993. Classes will begin September 19, with programs for students ages 6 through adult in a variety of media. In addition to children's classes and traditional studio classes in painting, drawing, printmaking, and sculpture, Artworks is offering a variety of new and innovative classes for the fall session.

Katherine Bruce will offer three two-week workshops in which students will explore papermaking basics and sheet-forming techniques. Susan Mania will lead a two-week workshop in encaustic, the ancient process of hot wax painting.

New Jersey State Council on the Arts 1994 fellowship recipient Diedre McGrail will offer Mixed Media. This ten-week class utilizes slide lectures and hands-on studio work to investigate numerous techniques in which a variety of materials are used to create a single statement.

Other offerings include Color Theory, Silkscreen Printing, and Elements of Design. Call Artworks at 394-9436 to request a fall schedule. Registration is accepted by mail and by phone.

Exhibits

"Different Views," an exhibition of the work of six New Jersey photographers, will be at The Gallery at Scanticon through September 30.

The six are William Vandever, Bill Gregory, Margaret Morgan, Martha Vaughn, Ken Koplowitz, and Clem Fiori.

"Tiananmen Square," a series of ten 72" x 24" canvases by Connecticut artist Judith Funkhouser, will be on display in the Bernstein Gallery of the Woodrow Wilson School of Public and International Affairs, Princeton University, from September 8 through October 24. The canvases were painted to honor the spirit of the Chinese students who participated in the 1989 uprising in Beijing.

"I was so hopeful for China when I watched the brave students in Tiananmen Square," Ms. Funkhouser said. "I felt such optimism that a better day was truly dawning ... what happened was horrible. The tanks crushed more than the students. As part of dealing with the emotions I felt I painted a series of paintings to honor China and express the universal hope for a better future. I was determined to focus on the extraordinary exuberant spirit of the Chinese students. They beamed such a light for the whole world."

The bold, non-representational paintings in the "Tiananmen Square" series are based on the tradition of erecting "stele" — an upright stone or slab with an inscribed or sculptured surface, usually placed as n monument. The artist holds a BFA from the Rhode Island School of Design. Her paintings have been exhibited in galleries in New York City, Connecticut, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Maine.

The Bernstein Gallery, is located on the lower level of Robertson Hall on the Princeton University campus.

The paintings of Dr. Karl Gossner will be exhibited at the Present Day Club during September and October.

Growing up in the western part of Romania, high school education in art for Karl Gossner was traditional; emphasis was placed on copying the old masters. His small watercolor set served him well, and eventually he moved outside the classroom and began sketching landscapes outdoors on his own. After graduation from medical school, and while serving as a physician in the U.S. Army, he continued experimenting with the medium.

Upon immigrating to the United States in 1959, Dr. Gossner was a psychiatrist at Trenton Psychiatric Hospital. There, and later at Carrier Foundation, he became interested in the artwork produced by patients and began integrating art therapy into his treatment modality. Subsequently he lectured on "Art Therapy as an Adjunct to Psychotherapy" in the area and in Europe and Israel.

Dr. Gossner is a member of the Garden State Watercolor Society and Pennsylvania Watercolor Society, and has exhibited in shows at Artworks Trenton, Garden State members shows, and Stonybrook Watershed Society's barn exhibit.

He is in private practice in Princeton where he lives with his wife, Nancy Hodges.

The mystery of the unknown, the gestures of nature, and the aura of the East predominate in the fall exhibition of Princeton Day School's Anne Reid Gallery, "Searching Beyond the Image," on display from September 11 to October 8.

Works by two New Jersey artists take over the L-shaped gallery; two/three dimensional prints by Margaret Kennard Johnson of Princeton and multimedia sculpture by Barry Snyder of Lambertville. The public is invited to the opening reception on Saturday, September 11, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

For 8½ years Ms. Johnson lived in Tokyo, where she studied Japanese calligraphy and Japanese woodblocks. Her stay had tremendous impact on her technique, imagery and palette.

Her intaglio techniques depend on building up and incising the plate's surface from which the print is cast. For her relief prints she uses mesh as the plate. She inks each layer and runs it through the press separately, building up the layers for two- or three-dimensional prints. Some are embossed, others pulled from sculptured paper. Though they may seem monochromatic in their layers the prints combine low-keyed colors. The layered colors, not true to a palette, emerge in muted warm and cool tones.

Mr. Snyder spent 35 years as a teacher, juror, fine-art consultant, collector, practicing and exhibiting artist, and owner-director of the Princeton Gallery of Fine Art.

After working with drawings, paintings and photographs, he assembled sculptures from antiques, old tools, and the found objects of everyday life. Endowed with new life, they referred to the primitive art of the past, made outrageous visual puns, or expressed mystery, anxiety, love, fear and other emotions.

The Artist-In-Residence Show will open with a public reception on Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. in the WPA Gallery of the Arts Council. This annual show highlights the work of the artists who have studio space and/or are program instructors at the Arts Council. The exhibit will continue through October 6.

The wide spectrum of media on display — including ceramics, watercolor, photography, sculpture, mixed media and oil on canvas — reflects the diversity of talent and interests of the artists. The featued artists include David Bush, Heather Barros, Elisa Hirvonen, Elizabeth Lombardi, Allison Paschke, Kathleen Preziosi, Christine Wuthrich, Robert Schreiber and Debbie Reichard

Gallery hours are Tuesday through Saturday, 10 to 6.

Princeton's Opponents Will Present Varied Challenges, But Tigers Should Be Able to Beat at Least 8 of Them

The 10-game schedule facing the Princeton football team this fall lists the same opponents as 1992 in almost the same order. Only the locales have been changed.

The trick for Old Nassau, which has recorded a pair of consecutive 8-2 seasons, is to continue its dominance over these same teams, many of which it has beaten several years in a row. The Tigers are hoping for a third showdown with Dartmouth for the Ivy title in November, but the nine contests ahead of that one each will present a different challenge.

SPORTS

Together with the Big Green, Princeton is at the top of every opponent's hit list. Here's a brief look at them. (Home games in caps)

CORNELL (Sept. 18): The Big Red will come to Palmer Stadium with 10 starters back, looking for its first victory here in a decade. Offensively, the Ithacans can boast about record-setting quarterback Bill Lazor, but not much else. Graduation took the top running back, virtually all the receivers, plus all-Ivy center Troy Thompson.

Coach Jim Hofher (fourth season) will build his defense around all-American linebacker Chris Zingo, who set a school record for tackles last year. Junior John Vitullo further will strengthen the linebackers, but three new players are needed in the secondary and two in the line. Catching Cornell early should help Tigers win this one.

Lafayette (Sept. 25): Last year's Patriot League champions will be rebuilding, but still be tough for the Tigers in Easton. Coach Bill Russo has superb junior tailback Erik Marsh, but will definitely miss graduated quarterback Tom Kirchhoff, '92 league MVP, who gave the Tigers fits last year. The line lost three of five starters.

The defense, with more starters back, figures to be better than last year's unit which allowed almost 26 points a game. Keith Elias ran for a record 299 yards against the Leopards a year ago, and the Tigers needed every one of them in a 38-35 win. This year the Tigers' defense should be able to give Elias some help.

HOLY CROSS (Oct. 2): The Crusaders are not the fearsome team they once were, but they are one of the stronger Patriot teams. Coach Peter Vass worked with an inexperienced offense and veteran defense last year, and will have the reverse this season.

Sophomore passer Andy Fitzpatrick, a 10-game starter as a rookie, can build on his decent first year stats. Both running backs return, so does the top receiver and two linemen. The defense, third best in the country, in yards allowed, will have to be rebuilt. If nothing else, Tigers have emotional edge in this one, they haven't beaten HC since series resumed in mid-'80s.

Brown (Oct. 9): You can count on the fingers of one hand the number of games Brown has won in the last five years, starting with none last fall. Fourth-year coach Mickey Kwiatkowski will have to break in a sophomore quarterback, but freshman MVP Gordie Myers may be okay once he gets some seasoning. There's more experience at running back and receiver, and big (275-lb average) offensive line that returns all the starters, except center.

The defense has eight starters back including four in the secondary that was second best in the league in pass defense. Of course, that's because opponents could run at will against the Bruins. Princeton's only problem here will be fighting overconfidence.

LEHIGH (Oct. 16): The Engineers are the pick to win the Patriot in '93. As usual coach Hank Small will feature a strong offensive unit, led by senior quarterback Scott Semptimphelter, a record-setting passer. The kicker is the return of senior tailback Mark

Tigers Whip Montclair State, 19-0, In Pre-Season Scrimmage Saturday

A pre-season scrimmage against Montclair State last Saturday provided Princeton football coaches with their first full look at their squad's progress, and they had to like what they saw and what they didn't see.

Unlike last year, when Brian Kazan was lost for the season with a knee injury, the Tigers didn't experience any serious injuries to key personnel. That was a positive note, and with Kazan back at full speed, this scrimmage could be judged a success on that alone.

Playing against this weaker opponent, it wasn't quite like Rutgers versus Colgate, but the Orange and Black did move the ball with relative ease when the first string was in, scoring 19 points. The defense did not allow the visitors anything.

In the brief time the starting offense was on the field, quarterback Joel Foote completed five of six passes for 92 yards, with a long one of 43 yards. Keith Elias ran six times for 44 yards. However, the most impressive stats were posted by wide receiver Marc Ross, who caught eight passes for 133 yards and two touchdowns of 20 and 43 yards. Ross, a backup to Steve Tufillaro, has yet to catch his first varsity pass, but he looks ready.

Another bright spot was the running of junior Bill Jordan and sophomore Marc Washington. Elias may look like he could run forever, but he does need a break every now and then, and these two will be used to give him a breather. Jordan was a freshman tailback two years ago, was moved to defensive back last year, and now has been switched back.

Sophomore quarterback Brock Harvey also performed well, completing four of five tosses for 94 yards. Tight end Colin Nance caught one of his throws and turned it into a 53-yard romp, but was stripped of the ball just as he was about to cross the goal line.

The defensive front four of Jim Renna, Reggie Harris, Nick Brophy and Kazan looked solid. Montclair was held to 45 yards rushing and 127 yards passing. Princeton had 130 rushing and 212 passing.

This Saturday the team will have an intra-squad scrimmage and the following Saturday, the season will begin.

SAFETY VALVE: Brian Mangene will hold down one of the two safety spots on defense this fall for Tiger football team.

Lookenbill, who sat out most of last season following knee surgery. Two good receivers and three of five linemen return also.

With eight starters back, the defense will try its best to give the offense a breather, but offense is Lehigh's forte. Look for another shootout like the 38-28 battle the two played last year; Lehigh could sneak away from Palmer Stadium with this one.

Harvard (Oct. 23): Coach Joe Restic will try to make his 23rd and final year a winning one (the first since '87), but it won't be easy. The Crimson returns one of the league's best quarterbacks in senior Mike Giardi, but not a whole lot else. Holes must be plugged at running back and receiver; the line has four of five starters back from a weak unit a year ago.

Graduation decimated the defense, leaving just two starters to build around. Harvard may be in for another mediocre campaign, but Tigers will do well to remember how their 5-0 team got kicked around in Cambridge two years ago.

COLUMBIA (Oct. 30): The Lions' 3-7 season in '92, their best in years, has lifted them out of the pushover category. They have a returning starting quarterback in senior Chad Andrzejewski, who threw for almost 2,000 yards last season, and a couple of sophomore tailback prospects who may rejuvenate the running game. New receivers are needed, but the line has everybody back but the center.

The biggest loss is middle linebacker Des Werthman, runner up for the Bushnell Cup. Still Coach Ray Tellier has six starters back and a knack for upsetting at least one stronger Ivy opponent (Cornell in '92) each fall. The Tigers have suffered thier share over the last decade, and cannot look beyond Columbia.

Pennsylvania (Nov. 6): In just one year, Coach Al Bagnoli has made the Quakers into contenders again. The offense has returning starter Jim McGeehan at quarterback, and Trenton High grad Terrance Stokes hoping to pick up where Sundiata Rush left off. Help is needed at receiver and offensive line positions.

A sturdy defense, boasting Ivy sophomore-of-the-year Pat Goodwillie, will be the key to the Quakers' hopes. Six starters are back, plus help will come from a 5-1 freshman team. The Quakers have the best chance of beating Princeton before the Dartmouth game.

YALE (Nov. 13): The dean of Ivy coaches, Carm Cozza (29th year) has almost always followed a losing season with a winning one, but he will be hard pressed to improve on last year's 4-6 mark. He desperately needs a quarterback to take the pressure off returning running back Keith Price, but a dominant signalcaller may not emerge from the pack of also-rans. His two top receivers return, and two-fifths of the line.

Just three starters are back on a defense that did not distinguish itself last year. Tigers should win third straight over Elis for the first time since mid-'60s.

Dartmouth (Nov.20): Senior quarterback Jay Fiedler, a legitimate pro prospect, makes the Big Green a threat to win every game on its schedule. He is head and shoulders above any other in the league in passing ability. And it won't hurt that he has 75 percent of his receivers back, after losing top pass catcher Matt Brzica. Dartmouth does need to rebuild its running attack from scratch.

The defense, led by all-Ivy first-teamer George Neos, will be one of the best in the league again. Only three positions need to be filled. Dartmouth's key game before Princeton will also be Penn; the Big Green must play its season's opener in Franklin Field, and could be vulnerable.

If it plays up to expectations, Princeton could well be undefeated in league competition going into its game with Penn. It should be able to win at least two of three of its non-Ivy games, but doesn't figure to capture all of them against the best three in the Patriot.

This will leave the Tigers still in contention for the Ivy title when they travel to Hanover on November 20. They may well put together another 8-2 season, but right now that seems more likely than beating Dartmouth. A share of the title seems the best Princeton can hope for, and that counts on a loss by the Big Green.

His Goal: Best Possible Athletic Experience

John Curtis

As Princeton resident John Curtis, the new athletic director at Princeton High, used to drive the 45 miles to West Side High in Newark where he was that school's AD, "I always thought," he said, "how wonderful it would be if I could be athletic director of this school system."

"I've anticipated this position for years," said the former professional football player last week, as he watched the Princeton High football team scrimmage members from East Side High in Newark. "I'm looking forward to it."

"I want to be able to provide kids with the best possible athletic experience," said Curtis. "I don't know of anything better that can shape a young person's character."

And as a Borough member of the Princeton Joint Recreation Board, he also thinks it is possible to coordinate recreation programs with school teams. It's one of his goals.

Toward that end there will be a meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 in the high school auditorium for parents of school children in grades K through 12, coaches and anyone interested in sports, he said, to discuss the future and the direction of athletics in Princeton.

His own high-water mark in sports came in 1971 when the 6-3, 225-pound Curtis, a graduate of Springfield College, was a ninth-round draft choice of the New York Jets. "It was," he recalls, "my crowning achievement."

From 1971 through 1975, Curtis played for the Kansas City Chiefs, Baltimore Colts, the San Francisco 49ers and the Boston Patriots. His career in professional football never took off, he readily admits, a big grin breaking across his face — something that happens frequently.

But the other dream ... of someday heading the athletic department at Princeton High ... that one did.

Candidates for PHS Line Lack Experience, But Wadsworth Encouraged with Progress

FILLING HOLES IN PHS FOOTBALL LINE: Three players who will bolster the graduation-depleted line on the PHS football team are, from left, Damerlin Thompson, 5-11½, 225-pound tackle, and guards Derrek Vernon and Andrew Cuneo. Vernon is 5-10, 175 pounds, Cuneo 6-3, 190 pounds.

One of the reasons — in fact, a major one — why the Princeton High football team was so successful last year was the outstanding line play it received on both sides of the ball.

The players who made the Little Tiger line so effective — Tim O'Brien, Noah Harlan, Garrett Roberts, Ben Taylor, Jason Battle, Keith Esposito and Jimmy Angeletopoulos — have all graduated. Gone. History.

"We all thought that would be a major rebuilding problem," conceded PHS coach Keith Wadsworth. During the summer, Wadsworth reported, he told the kids if they wanted to play, there were a lot of spots in the line. The reaction was: "we'll play anywhere just as long as we get to play."

"The line is still green," admitted Wadsworth, "but they don't have bad habits. We're working on fundamentals. We'll be working on them the whole season so they don't get bad habits."

The PHS line is not big physically. But size is not everything. The players have worked hard during the summer with weights, said Wadsworth, building their strength and conditioning. "Strength and technique is all we're working on. The program has been a confidence booster. They get confidence in their ability and I tell them confidence builds winners."

After a controlled morning and afternoon workout session against Newark East Side High last week, Wadsworth commented that Newark had some big players, "but our guys were firing off the ball. They showed they were not afraid to hit somebody. The way they were using their legs and driving ... I'm encouraged.

"Last year, if a lineman got hurt, we had no substitutions. This year, everyone is on the same level. We're all working hard together. We have guys like Wanza Carter, Jeff Tantum and Marcel LeMar who can step in and have showed me they want to play. It's good to know you have backup."

Mapps at Center

Kyle Mapps, a 185-pound junior who saw action at the position last year, will anchor the line at center. Tantum, 190 pounds, who can also play guard or tackle, is a backup.

At one of the guard slots is Drew Cuneo, a tight end last year, who has made the switch to the line. At 6-3, 190, Cuneo has the size but has been playing with an injury. "If he stays healthy, he can help the inexperienced players," said Wadsworth. "He's very smart."

At the other guard is Derreck Vernon, a fullback last year. "Derreck is a very talented athlete who could play anywhere," said Wadsworth. "I asked him to make the move and he accepted it.

"He's very quick, runs the 40 in 4.9. He also played hockey and lacrosse last year so he plays three hard-hitting sports. He has a great attitude and gets everyone fired up." A good leader, is the way Wadsworth summed up the 175-pound Vernon.

A backup at guard is Wanza Carter, a 6-2, 185-pound sophomore. A defensive back as a freshman, Carter is green in the line, admits Wadsworth, but another player who has worked out hard during the summer. "He's very strong. We just have to be patient with him."

Tackle is perhaps the most iffy situation. Candidates include Damerlin Thompson, a 5-11½, 225-pound senior; another senior, Bobby Gallagher, is sidelined with a shoulder injury; junior Paul Feit, 5-11, 185, saw some action last year at outside tackle; Tantum, the swing player, and Marcel LeMar, a 6-0, 175-pound junior, who played tight end last year. Still another is sophomore Ronald Ira, a compact 5-10, 200 pounds, who had looked good at defensive tackle but who can alternate between guard and tackle.

At tight end, Wadsworth has one of the bluest of blue chip players in 6-3, 230-pound junior Kirk Webber. "I know they will be double-teaming Kirk, but I don't care if they do," said Wadsworth. "He's going to catch the ball no matter what. He has a great pair of soft hands and with his power he'll run over people. He just wants to play football. He has a great attitude and he's matured a lot."

Although they can't approach him because he is too young, Webber, reports Wadsworth, has college coaches already looking at him. "If he plays well the next two years, he'll do well for himself."

At split end is Justin Henderson, a 175-pound junior, who, reports Wadsworth, looked good in Thursday's scrimmage, is working hard and wants to nail down a spot on the team. "He's not afraid to hit. He has a good work ethic."

Henderson is fast — runs the 40 in 4.8 — and gained valuable experience his sophomore year, says Wadsworth. "He's excited. He wants to play."

Mike Nolan and Brandon McEwen, two juniors, are backup to Webber. McEwen was a tailback last year. Foreal Wooten, a fine basketball player and a good wideout candidate, has moved to Lawrence High. Said Wadsworth, "He's a very talented kid. I hate to lose somebody like that."

Things go in cycles, observed Wadsworth. "You never get the backs and linemen together." But if the line continues to develop as it has in the preseason, this year might prove to be the exception.

Opening Games Tuesday For PHS Field Hockey

As Princeton High field hockey coach Joyce Jones closes in on two decades of coaching (this is her 18th year), some things never change.

Her outlook is always optimistic. The goals of qualifying for the state tournament and doing well in league play while at the same time making the sport fun remain the same. "I would like to accomplish what we did last year — and more," summed up Jones.

The team will open its season on Tuesday when it hosts longtime rival Hopewell Valley at 3:45 and then entertains Nottingham two days later.

As for the league, Jones said one of her goals is to win more games overall. Last year, the Little Tigers won eight and lost eight to qualify for the state tournament but then lost, 1-0, to South Plainfield in the opening round of the states to finish 8-9. "We played a great game but lost," recalled Jones.

Scoring — the lack of it — was a problem last year. The high scorer was Eileen Yam with four goals. Yam graduated, but Jones has almost a dozen seniors returning this year. The 1993 squad is experienced.

The team will scrimmage Allentown this Wednesday and then engage in its annual Playday on Saturday before the opener. "They're excited and looking forwnrd to the start of the season," said Jones. "A lot of them went to summer camp and they're anxinus to play."

Senior Diane Gilbert has been elected player-manager for the team. Other seniors returning include Stephanie Hosea, Carrie Gleeksman, Lauren Miller, Jen Crall, Michole Bianconsino, Lindsay Laird, Galen Knudson, Alyssa Hughes, Megan O'Donoghue and goalie Elisa Orlanski. Returning juniors include Sheri Durkee, the second-leading scorer last year with three gnals, Stacy Miller, Traey Foote and Jennifer Mindlin.

Goalie will be one of the keys to the success of the team this fall. Challenging Orlanski to start in front of the net are two juniors, Jessica Parks and Meg Maher. To complement her experienced players, Jones welcomed about a dozen freshmen candidates, but she added, "I would like to get more."

Lots of New Faces in '93 For PHS Girls' Soccer

A virtual complete reconfiguration of the team.

That's what Greg Hand says he faces, as he starts his fourth year as coach of the Princeton High girls' soccer team. His third year was one of achievement: a 10-7 record, the school's best since 1980; participation in the state tournament, where PHS was a first-round loser to Hopewell Valley.

That team boasted a core of four- and three-year starters. Cathy Neuger, Myke Drayer, Ailey Penningroth, Lauren Wedham, Ariel Goettinger and Shannon Koch. All were seniors.

Said Hand on Thursday, the first day he divided his squad into varsity and junior varsity teams, "I think the optimism is great. But we are young." Noting that there are 11 sophomores and freshmen on the varsity, he added, "It means, any way you cut it, probably six will be starting."

Before their season's opener nn Tuesday at Hamilton, the Little Tigers will engage in back-to-back scrimmages against Bordentown on Thursday and South Brunswick on Friday. Both are away.

One good development, reports Hand, is that for the past two years there has been a good freshman turnout. This fall there are 15 sophomores and 15 freshmen on the squad.

"I think it reflects the development of the girls' youth soc-

PHS SOCCER CO-CAPTAINS: Captains of the Princeton High boys' soccer team this year are defender Ismar SantaCruz, left, and forward Erick Santizo. Both are seniors.

"We'll Be Competitive" Predicts PHS's Celestin

"I think everyone — including ourselves — expects us to make the states. Once you get a taste of it you want it again."

The speaker, Princeton High boys' soccer coach Ron Celestin, and his Little Tiger team tasted the accomplishment of qualifying for post-season state competition last year — the first time in Celestin's seven years as coach of the Blue and White.

The team rebounded sharply from a 3-14-3 record in 1991 to a 10-7-1 mark last fall. Unfortunately, that good taste did not last long. PHS lost to Lawrence High, 3-0, in the opening round of the playoffs — to the same Cardinal team it had defeated twice in the regular season by identical 2-1 scores.

"I think we will be a competitive team," predicted Celestin of this year's team. "I think every team in the County has lost key players so that sort of evens things up. I look for us to be as competitive as we were last year. Hopefully, we can avoid injuries, which has to be tested under game conditions," said Hand.

Jennifer Jolley and Sian MacAdam are two other seniors on the varsity. Juniors, in addition to Gilbert, are Leigh Coppel, Rachael Stentz and Suzannah Stout. There are five sophomores — Molly Christiansen, Alexandra Edelman, Liz Gilbert (Cathy's younger sister), Anna Kupin and Katie Wepplo. Wepplo has had playing experience at right wing.

With an eye to the future, Hand has named six freshmen to the varsity. They are Beth Blofson, Courtney Nolan, Rebecca Parks, Stephanie Rigolot, Ryan Shawhughes and Carly Zebuhr.

Because the team is young and inexperienced for the most part, there may not be another berth in the state competition this year. Perennial powers such as Hamilton, Notre Dame, Ewing, Steinert and Nottingham — the last was the Valley Division champion last year and has virtually everyone back — have the luxury of building varsities from junior and senior players.

Summed up Hand, "The goal this year is to make very tangible improvements as to how we play as a team and stay optimistic about the direction we're moving in. I'll be interested not so much in surprising or upsetting teams but perhaps in surprising ourselves this year by bringing our caliber of play up a notch."

cer program in town a few years ago. We're finally just starting to get a few of those players coming out."

As for the outlook this fall, while it is a young team, Hand adds, "It's a team of very good athletes who have a good instinct for the game. They have a lot to learn but they are learning very quickly.

"They have made a commitment to themselves as to what they can and can't do. They are working very hard to improve their skills as individuals and as a team. I'm optimistic we're going to get better rapidly as the season goes on."

Gordon & Gilbert Captains

Co-captains of this year's team are senior Kathryn Gordon and junior Catherine Gilbert. Both are standouts. "Gordon has a great knack for com hination play," said Hand. "This will be her third year at left wing.

"Gilbert has become a more skillful individual player, even more so than last year. More importantly, she sees the whole field and what's developing on the field as well as any player in our area."

Another senior is goalie Evin Aksay, used sparingly last year because the team was so strong at keeper with veterans Koch and Wedham. "She's very quick and aggressive but she will enable us to be more consistent."

It's tough to make any concrete statements, he said, because he hasn't selected a varsity from his squad that numbers 36 — not counting freshmen.

The team will scrimmage Bordentown here on Thursday and Metuchen on Saturday before opening its season on Tuesday when it hosts Hamilton in a 3:45 contest at its Valley Road field.

Celestin welcomes eight returning players and while he has some good prospects, he said, he has some spots to fill. "I have some tough choices to make but the kids are working hard. Their attitude has been good despite the hot weather we've been having. They are working hard for me so I can't complain."

Two standouts from last year will not return. Bren Plummer, the team's leading scorer with 10 goals, has moved away, and Carlos Figueroa is academically ineligible this fall.

The team will be led this year by co-captains Erick Santizo, a middy/forward, and stopper Ismar SantaCruz. "Erick was our third-leading scorer last year and one of our key players. He's been with us for four years," said Celestin.

Two more returning veterans are seniors Grant Cooper and Jose Alvarado. Both are midfielders and Celestin described each as a steady player. Two returning juniors are Brian Kruegel, a scrappy middy, and forward Rich Osmer. Sophomore Sloan Bermann is back at fullback.

Three are vying for the starting goalie position. Sophomore Craig Schroeder gained some experience last year by playing in three or four games. "He was in goal when we had that big win over Steinert," recalled Celestin. His competition will come from senior Greg Sachs, who played all jayvee last year, and from sophomore Dan Veit.

"We have a tough schedule," commented Celestin. "Every team we play is a tough team; every game will be tough for us.

But by the time the cutoff date for the state tournament arrives, Celestin said he expects to have achieved the necessary .500 or better record needed to qualify.

Opening Game Friday For PHS Tennis Team

Where have all the tennis players gone?

With the opening game of the season at Hamilton just a few days away on Friday and the home opener set for Tuesday against McCorristin, don't be surprised if veteran tennis coach Bill Humes puts this ad in the paper: "Wanted: tennis players. Experience preferred but not essential. Will train."

A week before the opener, Humes has nine players on his squad. This in a town that has long enjoyed a reputation for being tennis-minded and whose junior tennis programs served as a model for the rest of the country.

"We can field a team from nine players but take away three and we're down to the bare bones," said Humes. I think the numbers will hurt us — if not this year then next year."

"I'm not sure where all the players are. We used to get 40 to 50 out," recalled Humes. Some, he admitted, were just fringe players but they came out nonetheless. Humes also described girls' tennis and girls' soccer as the two swing sports at the school. Right now, he said, soccer is up and tennis is down. Girls' soccer coach Greg Hand has 30 freshmen and sophomores on his squad.

Humes also commented that he expects more to come out when those on vacation come home, such as senior twins Judy and Jackie Dinella, and when new students enroll.

"I feel we'll still be in contention with the players we have," said Humes. "We won't win any state championships but we'll be okay." He predicts that Lawrence High, last year's Valley Division champion, a title that PHS used to routinely call its own, and West Windsor will be the two strongest teams in the league this fall.

On this year's team, two singles players are junior Laura Woo and freshman Sarah Levine. "Laura has worked hard during the summer and it's very evident," reported Humes. "Her serve has improved." He described Levine as "very promising."

The rest of the team will be determined from challenge matches. Vying for positions are seniors Mandi Caudill and Sophie Wenzel, juniors Jen Cook and Maushimi Mavinkurve, sophomore Doana Cecan and freshman Keiko Okuda.

The thin squad took two more hits when twins Anna and Laura Lewis moved back to England and Kate Eskew moved to Atlanta.

Last year, PHS compiled a 14-4 record but lost to Holmdel in the Central Jersey Group II finals. The year before, the Little Tigers were 18-1 and were Central Jersey champions.

PSA Soccer Registration Next Saturday, Sept. 18

The Princeton Soccer Association will hold final preregistration for its recreational leagues Saturday, September 18, at the Washington Road soccer fields.

The recreational soccer program, which is for girls and boys in grades K through eight, will be held Saturday mornings from September 18 through November 13 on the Washington Road fields. The $35 fee for the fall season can be waived in the case of financial hardship. PSA volunteers are also organizing a "buddy" system to link drivers with children who need transportation to and from the soccer fields.

Neither Princeton residency nor previous soccer experience is required for this "just for fun" soccer league. For further information, call PSA president Ted Terpstra at 924-8243.

NOTHING IS CHILDPROOF — ESPECIALLY YOUR POOL

When little feet patter alone to a backyard swimming pool, tragedy usually lurks close behind. A California mother of twins noticed silence in the house where her children had been playing. As she ran through the house looking for them, she saw that the sliding screen door leading to the pool was open. She thought that she had locked it. Approaching the pool, she saw her 1-year-old sons floating in the water — one face up, one face down. They were unconscious but lived. In New Jersey, a 3-year-old girl went next door to play with friends. Unnoticed by the caretaker, she climbed a ladder to the aboveground swimming pool, slipped through an opening in the fence, and drowned. In another incident, a 2-year-old Arizona boy left his grandmother's kitchen through a pet door and drowned in the backyard pool.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), in a comprehensive study of residential pool submersion incidents involving children under 5 years old, learned that 46 percent of the victims were last seen in the house and 23 percent were last seen in the yard or on the porch or patio. But, before being found in the water, none of these children were expected to be in or around the pool. Further, CPSC investigations revealed that at the time of the incidents, most of the youngsters were being supervised by one or both parents but had vanished from the sight for only a few minutes.

Annually, more than 300 children under 5 years old accidentally fall into backyard swimming pools and drown, usually at their own home. Additionally, each year, more than 2,000 children under age 5 nearly drown in residential pools. As a result, some of the survivors suffer permanent brain damage. Health care costs for near-drowning victims typically range from $75,000 for initial hospital emergency room treatment to $180,000 a year for long-term care.

In Arizona, California, Florida and Texas, drowning has been the leading cause of accidental death in the home to children under 5 years old. Boys between 1 and 3 years old are most vulnerable to submersion incidents. Toddlers, in particular, often do something unexpected because their capabilities change daily.

CPSC Commissioner Carol Dawson points out, "A temporary lapse in supervision is the common denominator in most submersion incidents investigated by CPSC." She says, "In a matter of minutes, a child can vanish from a parent's sight, reach the pool, and fall in." She refers to drowning as the silent death, for rarely is there a cry for help or the sound of splashing. Children usually drown in the family pool, or one owned by a relative or friend. "A child can drown in the time it takes a parent or caregiver to answer a telephone, remove clothes from the dryer, or even as a parent is nearby but preoccupied with yard work. Sometimes, a parent is simply distracted from the one child to care for another." She adds, "When a child is submerged in water, seconds become precious in preventing death or permanent brain damage."

Based on information that shows that a series-of-events typically leads to child-submersion incidents, CPSC urges parents to complement vigilant supervision with barriers that provide layers of protection for children. Barriers can restrict a young child's access to the pool if momentarily unsupervised. By limiting a child's ability to reach the pool, parents gain additional time to locate a child who strays from sight. Barriers also protect children from hot tubs and spas. CPSC experts recommend the following barriers:

• Install a fence or other barrier, such as a wall, completely around the pool. If the house is part of the barrier, the doors leading from the house to the pool should be protected with an alarm or the pool should have a power safety cover.

• The fence or other barrier should be at least four feet high. It should have no foot or handholds that could help a young child to climb it.

• Vertical fence slats should be less than four inches apart to prevent a child from squeezing through.

• If the fence is chain link, then no part of the diamond-shaped opening should be larger than 1¾ inches.

• Fence gates should be self-closing and self-latching. The gate should be well maintained to close and latch easily. The latch should be out of a child's reach.

• If the house forms one side of the barrier, then doors leading from the house to the pool should be protected with alarms that produce an audible sound when a door is unexpectedly opened.

• Install an alarm that can be temporarily turned off by an adult for a single opening of the door by using a keypad or switch that is out of a child's reach.

• Power safety covers over the pool may be used as an alternative to door alarms. A power safety cover should meet the requirements of the ASTM pool cover standard which addresses labeling requirements and performance. ASTM requires that a cover withstand the weight of two adults and a child to allow a rescue should an individual fall onto the cover. The standard also requires quick removal of water from the cover. A young child can drown in just inches of water.

CPSC encourages parents to plan for the unexpected. The effects of losing a child to accidental death can recast the destiny of a family. Many couples who have lost children to drowning accidents eventually divorce. The childhood of sibling survivors is reshaped in many ways.

In 1979 he was awarded the Whitney North Seymour Sr. Medal for his work with the Arbitration Association. He served on the board of directors of the American Retail Association throughout his career at Macy's.

Mr Block graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Princeton University in 1938 and was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Law School, where he was editor of the law school review.

In Princeton he was president of the Friends of Princeton Public Library and a member of the board of trustees of Princeton Medical Center. He also served as a member of the board of the Stony Brook-Millstone Watershed Association and was appointed to the Joint Commission on Aging. He also served as an adviser to Princeton University on labor relations matters.

Surviving are his wife Ruth; two sons, John of New York City and Richard of Scarsdale; and four grandchildren.

A memorial service was held Friday at the Princeton University Chapel. In lieu of flowers donations may be sent to the Friends of Princeton Public Library or the Princeton University Class of 1938 Memorial Fund.

Memorial Service

A memorial service will be held Saturday at 2 at the Unitarian Church for Carl V. Olson, a longtime patent attorney for RCA David Sarnoff Laboratories, who died August 14. The Rev. Paul Johnson will officiate.

James Hopkins, a former Princeton area resident, died September 2 in Waldoboro, Maine after a long illness.

He was born in Lawrenceville in 1924 and lived there and in Princeton and the Princeton area until 1984 when he and his wife Libby moved to Maine.

Mr Hopkins served in the Army in 1948 and 1949 and then worked in Princeton for many years for the University Store. He loved musical theater and while the Lawrenceville Fire company had its annual minstrel show, he played in it and often directed it.

He was a member of the Inn Cabaret, PJ&B Players and Community Players, and he took several years off to be a puppeteer and set designer for the Silo Circle Players in Black Mountain, N.C.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Lysa Helm of Newfield; two sisters, Katherine Stulter of Lawrenceville and Marie Vendetti of Trenton, and two brothers, John Robert and Joseph, both of Trenton.

A memorial service will be announced later.

Emma Anderson Rowles, 79, of Wood River Village, Bensalem, Pa., formerly of Princeton, died September 3 at St Mary's Hospital, Langhorne, Pa.

Born in Princeton Junction, she lived in Princeton and also for a short time in Rossmoor, Jamesburg. Mrs Rowles attended Princeton Public Schools and was employed by the Board of Education for 18 years. She was later employed by Princeton Theological Seminary for 37 years as administrative assistant to the president.

She served as treasurer of the YWCA for two terms and treasurer of Rossmoor Garden Club. She also was secretary of the Women's Club of Princeton.

Surviving are her husband, Leewood W. Rowles of Bensalem; a daughter, Susanne Hussong of Honolulu, Hawaii; three granddaughters, all of Hawaii; a brother, Lester R. Anderson Jr.; three nieces, two grandnieces and a grandnephew.

A memorial service will be held Wednesday, September 15, at 2 at Miller Chapel, Princeton Theological Seminary. Burial will be in Princeton Cemetery. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Alzheimer's Disease Association National Headquarters, 919 North Michigan Avenue, Suite 100, Chicago, Ill, 60611, attention Donations Department.
